Chapter 391: The Reckoning

The Unyielding Force

The battle raged on, the clash between the Divine Triad and the Watchers Beyond Time reverberating across the multiverse. The Watchers, ancient beings of pure concept, wielded the power to alter the very essence of reality, but the Divine Triad stood resolute. Their power was not of mere existence; it was of creation, destruction, and the balance that governed all things.

Sung Jin-Woo, standing at the helm of this conflict, was the epitome of unyielding will. His 60 million wings spread wide, each feather crackling with divine energy that distorted the very fabric of space. He was not just a god—he was the True Absolute One, the force that held the multiverse together. His True Absolute One Domain Realm pulsed with power, a realm that existed beyond the constraints of time and space, a place where nothing—no matter how ancient or powerful—could truly alter its course.

Beside him stood Ashborn, the True Celestial Being, his form radiant with the light of creation itself. His 2 million wings unfurled, bending the very laws of reality to his will. The True Celestial Realm, where Ashborn resided, shimmered with infinite potential as he wielded the powers of light to combat the Watchers' interference.

Then there was Sung Su-Ho, the True Dragon God, his 1.8 million wings a fiery force of nature. His presence alone radiated destruction, a being forged in the heart of flames and darkness. His True Dragon God Realm crackled with draconic energy, a place where the power of the dragons could reach their fullest potential.

Together, they were unstoppable, but even their immense strength was tested by the Watchers.

The Battle of Time and Space

The Watchers were not beings of mere form. They were the very concepts that governed the multiverse. The Watcher of Time twisted the flow of time, accelerating and reversing moments with each gesture. Sung Jin-Woo met this assault with his own mastery over time, bending the fabric of existence to his will. Each moment stretched, then compressed, as time itself seemed to war with the very being of the True Absolute One.

Ashborn faced the Watcher of Creation, a being whose power could unravel the very concept of existence. It was a battle of light and darkness, creation against destruction. With every strike of Ashborn's light, the Watcher’s attempt to reshape the multiverse faltered. But the Watcher was relentless, each attempt to reconstruct reality itself resisted by the True Celestial Being's shining essence.

Meanwhile, Sung Su-Ho battled the Watcher of Destruction, whose power threatened to erase entire realities with a thought. The ground beneath him trembled as Sung Su-Ho's black flames clashed with the force of annihilation. Each strike from Sung Su-Ho carried the fury of the True Dragon God, while the Watcher of Destruction sought to reduce everything to nothingness.

Though they were powerful, the Watchers were not prepared for the force that the Divine Triad represented. The combined might of Sung Jin-Woo, Ashborn, and Sung Su-Ho overwhelmed the Watchers' attempts to rewrite the multiverse.

The Unforeseen Ally

In the midst of the chaos, an unexpected presence made itself known.

From the depths of the True Absolute One Domain Realm, a new power emerged. It was not of this world, nor of the Watchers’ making, but it was an ancient force—a force that had been quietly growing in strength.

The World Tree, planted by Sung Jin-Woo in the heart of his realm, resonated with energy. The Third World Tree, whose branches spanned light-years, pulsed with life. Its roots dug deep into the very foundation of reality. This tree was no mere symbol; it was an extension of Sung Jin-Woo's essence, a part of him that had grown to unimaginable proportions.

From the Third World Tree came the angels and mythical creatures, their numbers countless. These beings, created from the fruits of the tree, were bound to Sung Jin-Woo, and their power was unparalleled.

As the Divine Triad clashed with the Watchers, the angels of light and the mythical creatures from the Third World Tree surged into the fray. They fought alongside the Divine Triad, their energy combining with the power of Sung Jin-Woo, Ashborn, and Sung Su-Ho. The archangels, dark archangels, and the Nine Divine Dragons joined the battle, each of them an extension of the Divine Triad's strength.

The battle had taken a new turn.

The Tide Turns

The Watcher of Time, the Watcher of Creation, and the Watcher of Destruction faltered in their attempts to rewrite the multiverse. The Third World Tree's power proved to be a countermeasure against the Watchers' overwhelming influence. Each angel, each mythical creature, drew from the essence of the World Tree, amplifying the Divine Triad's power and pushing back against the Watchers' influence.

Sung Jin-Woo stood tall, his wings extending to their full 60 million span. The Watcher of Time could no longer slow his movements, and the flow of time itself began to stabilize. Ashborn's light filled the True Celestial Realm, pushing back the Watcher of Creation, and Sung Su-Ho's flames enveloped the Watcher of Destruction, stopping its efforts to erase reality.

"We are the architects of this world," Sung Jin-Woo declared, his voice like a tidal wave that crashed against the Watchers' will. "You will not erase what we have built."

As the Watchers' influence waned, the Divine Triad pressed their advantage. Sung Jin-Woo unleashed the full force of his being, pushing the Watchers Beyond Time into retreat. They had underestimated the combined power of the Divine Triad, and they had failed to account for the power of the Third World Tree.

The Aftermath

With the Watchers Beyond Time forced into retreat, the Divine Triad stood victorious. The Heavenly Realm Universe had been preserved, and the multiverse had been spared from their wrath. The Divine Triad's reign over the multiverse remained unchallenged, their power greater than ever.

Yet, even as they stood triumphant, there was an unsettling feeling in the air. The Watchers Beyond Time were not easily defeated, and their retreat could be temporary. The Divine Triad would remain vigilant, for the multiverse was vast, and new challenges could arise at any moment.

For now, however, the multiverse was safe. The Divine Triad had proven their strength, and the Heavenly Realm Universe would continue to flourish under their rule.

To Be Continued...